The quarrymen are much to blame, as there was scarcely a time last summer when they were up with their orders. Had they pushed their work as energetically as the brick men, and not only kept up the de-mand, but laid up stock for the winter and spring, the number of brick foundations would have been greatly decreased.

The State Road.

The brick foundation of the Brooks Arcade building is going up rapidly and is being made solid enough to hold a seven-story building. It is said that Mr. Auerbach has bought out the leases on the row of shantles on the corner of the State road bach has bought out the leases on the row of shanties on the corner of the State road and Third South and that they will shortly be removed and that the main part of the Arcade will be built the coming season. It was these leases that stood in the way of starting the building last year and now that they are out of the way there is every probability that the walls of the Arcade block will be erected this year.

"The men who founded Salt Lake city thoughtfully reserved a ten acre block oc-casionally in different parts of the city, for casionally in different parts of the city, for puclic parks, the breathing places of the city that was to be. Such are the Tenth Ward Square, Washington Square, Pioneer Square, and University Square. A few years ago the city bought a tract of 110 scress, lying between Fifth and Seventh East and extending half a mile or so south of Ninth South, for a park, and called it Liberty park. The soil is rich and moist, and when bought by the city it already had quite a growth of trees on parts of it. Some attention has been given to its improvement. It is already an attractive place, and is capable of being made a beautiful jublic garden."

It is a Condition, Not & Theory, that Confronts Us.

LIVING ON BORROWED MONEY

There is No Conflict Between the East and the West-The Situation Outlined.

Senator J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas, in a recent newspaper article took occasion to allude to a state of enmity and conflict of interest which, he says, exists between the east and west. With all due respect to the distinguished gentleman and humility on the part of the writer the latter would like to call attention to a view of the case slightly different from that apparently held by the soon-to-be ex-Senator.

As to the Farmers' Alliahce—which he evidently thinks may exist as a factor in national politics for a longer period than perhaps a couple of years—the widely divergent aims and purposes of the several branches in different localities and that universal element in human nature, selfish. Senator J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas, in a re-universal element in human nature, selfishness, give abundantassurance that, like the

reganizations, it will fall apart of its own universal element in human nature, selfish-Knights of Labor and other ponderous class organizations, it will fall apart of its own weight, shortly after it enjoys its first taste of power.

The region embraced between the Mississippi river and the Pacific has during the ast twenty years, developed faster than ast twenty years, developed faster than in the province of any country in the history of nations. Cities have spring, almost by nagio, into existence. Kansas City, Domaha, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Wichita, Denver, Los Angeles, Tacoma, Seattle and Denver, Los Angeles, Tacoma, Seattle and sissippt river and the Pacific has during the last twenty years, developed faster than any section of any country in the history of nations. Cities have spring, almost by magic, into existence. Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Wichita, Denver, Los Angeles, Tacoma, Seattle and Sait Lake city has each in turn excited the wonder of almost the whole world, while ountless smaller towns have boomed and absorbed millions upon millions of money. Railroads have gridiroued this section, and in one way and another an incalcucable amount on wealth has been expended.

But has it been expended altogether in the right direction? Certainly all this development and improvement has been expended.

velopment and improvement has been very fine so long as it was going forward. So far as the west is concerned the condition has been precisly similar to the flush times during the war, when the nation plunged during the war, when the name places into a debt of billions of dollars, and when every lots of prosperity was a draft drawn on the future and bearing interest. So long as money flowed west in an increasing stream from the eastern states and from Europe, so long the west feasted on the plums that it was buying on credit and which must all be paid for by and by. There is but one source of the prodution of actual wealth in the west and that is, in one way or another, from the ground. No one will assert that the material advancement of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west, that is, the development of its of the west that the material advancement is an interest of the investment. Scarcity of money is not at the root of the trouble. It is a lack of confidence in the security offered, which lack of confidence is amply justified quantities of money whenever she sees the development of this country taking a turn which will give reasonable assurance of an ultimate return of the investment.

Scarcity of money is not at the root of the trouble. This was very good while it instea and the money sent from the cast was scattered about pretty freely, but what did it mean! It meant that Kansas was living on borrowed money and the debt was increasing to enormous propertions. Land cannot, however, go on doubling in value forever, as the Kansans have found to their suprise as the Kansans have found to their suprise and sorrow. Settling day has come and the mortgage-ridden tillers of the soil are casting about in desperation for some means of relieving themselves of the incubus which is crowding them under water.

which is crowding them under water.

This is an old story. It has been told before and why will not the people take to heart the lesson that it teaches! To a greater or less degree it has been, in one way or another, the case with nearly all western states and territories and is still continuing. They have seen and the state of the state of slightly neglected.

Mr. Ingalis, in his paper on the conflict between east and west, suggests in a vague sort of way that there is an antipathy and haired between the two sections and as usual lays the cause at the doors of the millionaire. He apparently feels hurt because the east in the course of two bundred and fifty years of substantial progress, shrewd management and rigid economy, has amassed greater weach than the west in fifty years of growth, pretty well diluted with boom and bombast, has succeeded in accumulating.

It is well to speak the truth and look these matters in the face. The trouble is that the west has developed too fast in one is direction and two slowly in another and generally speaking, westerners have overdened economy for the Kansas farmer to mortage his property whether his actual necessities demanded it or not. It was plaus ibly shown that money borrowed at 8 per cent, could be made to earn from 15 per cent, could be made to earn from 15 per cent to 20 per cent, and he could pocket y, the difference. But settling time has come and now the poor fools who were deluded into plastering their homes with mortgages inducted the that they have overstopped the mark:

In the finance. Loss, $235,000. In the insurance nearly covers the loss.

A Sensational Duel.

San Diego, March 10.—The particulars of the killing of William Trimmer by Frank Coto at El Cajo form a sensational story. Trimmer had been courting Coto's sister, but was objected to by relatives. Yesterday the young men met. After a quacrel it was decided to fight a duel. Twenty paces were stepped off; both began firing and after a few shots Trimmer feil dead. Coto received two severe wounds. He has been the first that the was resumed to night. The first series was won by Deoro, 150 to 93 for Clearwater. The champion-ship now lies between Powers and Deoro, the defeat of Clearwater to-day putting limit to play the progress.

The second series resulted in a victory for Wenrich over Luddington, 150 to 93.

A Sensation in the flames. Loss, the difference. But settling time has come and now the poor fools who were deluded into plastering their homes with mortgages find that they have overstepped the mark; ruin stares; them in the face, and in desperation, born of their, own unconfessed folly, they turn to repudiation for a way out of what appears to be no thoroughfare, and charge their ultimate condition to a scarcity of money.

There is pleaty of money to-day locked up in New York, Boston and the other money centres, but the trouble is that they have, and with ample reason, lost confi-have, and with ample reason, lost confi-dence in a large part of the west. They have seen their money going in a steady stream across the Mississippi into huge business blocks, railroads, water bonds, street railways and a thousand other investment securities, but they see no prospect in the immediate future that the west can produce enough from its actual resources to support itself and pay the interest on their ionas, laying aside all idea of repayment of the principal. In other words, if they want their interest they must themselves send the money west with which to pay it. Is it any wonder that they tighten the purse strings and refuse longer to throw their weaith into an apparently bottomiess pit! There are many to pity the poor bankrupt farmer and city lot owner, but who is to pity the clerk or street railways and a thousand other in bookkeeper in Boston, or Springfield, or Concord, or Philadelphia, whose little savings of perhaps $1,000 or $2,000, are represented by a nice steel engraved, red ink lined first mortgage on some farm in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska or one of the Dakotas, that perhaps might bring $200 at a forced sale! IT COMES UP TO-DAY an excitement in Lehi the past few days, partaking somewhat of politics and Liberal-ism. The question was simply the location of a central schoolhouse. Some time ago a fairly unanimous vote was polled for a tax of 1 per cent. to build such a house, our wants in that line being fully conceded. Two primaries were held, which were well attended and warm debates followed, and although politics was not mentioned, it was easily noticed that the leaders on one side were of our few Liberal (so-called) friends. The first primary appointed a committee on Captain F. L. Norton Heard From. site, to report to the second primary. Norton sailed for Europe with his family and a crew on a small steamer of same name, for which he claimed the quality of being unsimkable by storm and flood. He never has been seen since. Now one of the members of the company has heard from the illitie action. The medium declares Captain Norton died of starvation when eighty days out from this port, his wife and his niece having died a few days before. The little ship the story goes, met a terrible cyclone, and was driven far to the southward with the loss of the smoke stack and deck houses. At present the wreck lies about three thousand miles east of Brazil, and Engineer Coulson was the only survivor.

There is no antagonism between east and west. There is no quarrel between capitalist and farmer. They are not by any means capitalists who hold the west in pawn for its big cities with waterworks, electric lists.

Cost of Senatorial Funerals.

Washington, March 10.—The setting forth of the Hearst funeral procession has started a flood of gossip about the cost of senatorial funerals.

Representative Oates, of Alabama, says the Hearst funeral cortege now on its way to California, will cost not less than $30,000. Nine Senators and eight Representatives were appointed on eight Representatives were appointed on the part of their respective houses as an es-cort of honor. The wives of some of these gentlemen accompanied them, as well as two employees of the Senate. It was sent out the day before the train left that Mrs. Hearst had set her foot down on so large a party going, and that sooner than have the melancholy obsequies made a mere ex-cuse for a juniet at the government ex-bense, she would pay the cost of the train
